

STANDEES O. K. AT GRAND OPERA

It Is Not a Violation of the Municipal Law for Patrons to Occupy Space in Metropolitan Opera-House Foyer.

DECIDE AGAINST STURGIS.

Appellate Term of Supreme Court To-Day Upholds the Ruling to This Effect Already Made in the Lower Courts.

The Appellate Term of the Supreme Court, in a decision handed down to-day, sustains the judgment of the Eighth Municipal District Court that Maurice Grau did not violate Section 782 of the new charter, forbidding standers in the aisles and passageways of the Metropolitan Opera-House, when he let 311 patrons stand in the foyer back of the seats in the circle.

Presiding Justice Freeman and Justice Blanchard so decide, Justice MacLean dissenting.

Fire Commissioner Sturgis sent a corps of firemen to the Metropolitan Opera-House to "enforce the no standing room" law. They ordered Grau to remove the 311 persons in the foyer.

He refused and Corporation Counsel Riven began proceedings to collect the penalty of $50 each for the alleged violations.

It was shown that the aisles were clear, and that the foyer was a space, not a passageway, and had formerly been occupied by seats.

The Municipal Justice dismissed the case.

An appeal was taken with the result stated.

DOLANDO CLUB'S SHOW.

Spirited Bidding at the Sale of Boxes for Annual Reception.

The sale of boxes for the annual reception and entertainment of the Dolando Club at Lexington Avenue Opera-House on Dec. 16 yielded $800.

The bidding, which was limited to members of the club, was spirited. President John T. Meehan, Peter J. Hickey, Peter De Lacy, William Virtue and Julius Sondheim having "broke" friendly contests for the honor of first choice.

Mr. Meehan won at $50. Mr. Hickey shelled out $20 of his Washington Market profits for the companion prospecting box. De Lacy, Sondheim and Virtue paying $50 each for the next three boxes.

Other box buyers were Joseph Murray, Deputy Commissioner of Immigration, John McConough, W. H. May, C. Monney, William J. Thompson, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, Charles A. Smith, Joseph Nathan, James J. Markham, John J. White, Dr. H. C. Anderson, J. P. Brown, Thomas Walsh, William A. Smith, Isaac Fry and Henry Kette.

TYRONE POWER, JUDAS IN "MARY OF MAGDALA," FEARS AN ASSASSIN.

QUITS "TOMMY ROT."

Lionel Black Feels Relegation to the Chorus and So He Gets Out.

It would appear that Mr. Lionel Black, who has been playing the part of Eric Leicester in "Tommy Rot" at Mrs. Osborne's Playhouse, has been consulting an incompetent fortune-teller. Mr. Black threw up his part so hard to-day that it stuck to the ceiling.

"I have been led to believe," he said indignantly, "that Mrs. Osborne was going to put me back in the chorus."

Mrs. Osborne asserts that she had no such intention. She is unable to figure out how Mr. Black got the impression that he was to be relegated to the merry merry when, as a matter of fact, she was going to give him a new part in the new play by P. West, which will be performed at the Playhouse to-morrow night. Mr. Jack Henderson takes Mr. Black's place in the company.

FROHMAN SUNDAY CONCERT.

People's Choral Union Assisted at the Metropolitan Opera-House.

The enormous choir of the People's Choral Union assisted last evening at the fourth and last of Daniel Frohman's Sunday night concerts at the Metropolitan Opera-House. The chorus was heard in several part songs and assisted in Bruch's cantata, "Fair Ellen." The selections gave the chorus an opportunity for exhibiting its immense volume of tone. This was regretted by the audience, as it seemed useless to have brought the 1,000 singers together for the part they took in the performance.

The soloists were Miss Shanna Cummings and Gwilym Miles.

'OTELLO' OPENS OPERA SEASON.

Many Brilliant Box Parties Will Be Present To-Night in the Double Horseshoe at the Metropolitan.

GEMS AND GOWNS ON VIEW.

Exceptionally brilliant from both a social and artistic viewpoint will be the season of grand opera which opens to-night at the Metropolitan. Public interest is reflected in the unusually heavy subscription, and Manager Grau promises on his part that the stage productions will be on a lavish and artistic scale never before attempted here.

Vard's "Otello" has been chosen for the season's premier, and Mme. Emma Eames, M. Alvarez and Sir Scott will be the leading artists. M. Mancenelli will have the honor of conducting the opening performance.

The audience will have a familiar look to the regular opera-goer. No changes have been made among the box holders and the double horseshoe of bejeweled and beautifully gowned women will reveal the same faces that have been seen in their accustomed seats for several seasons past.

But the scene is one which never dyes, and for many the occupants of the grand tier and parterre boxes have more fascination than the artists behind the footlights.

Many noted guests are expected to attend the opening performance. Sir Michael and Lady Herbert will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wilson. Young Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will be the guest either of her father or sister, Mrs. Ogden Gould, whose box adjoins that of the Wilsons.

In the Goelet box the Marquis San Vito and his friend Count Primoli are to be guests. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will entertain the Harbimans and William C. Whitner will have a large party.

The body of the house will be unusually brilliant, as a great many visitors from out of town who spent Horse-Show week here have remained over for the opening of the opera.

The other performances of the week will be "Barber of Seville" on Wednesday, with Mme. Sembrich. "Aida" will be given as a special performance on Thanksgiving night, and Herr Anthes will make his debut on Friday in "Lohengrin." "La Traviata" will be given at Saturday's matinee and "Carmen" on Saturday night.

FAY GIVES DENIAL.

The Only Temptation Will Not Go with "Major Andre."

Miss Fay Templeton has asked The Evening World to deny that she has arranged to star next season in a play by Clyde Fitch called "Major Andre."

"I have made no arrangements for next season," said Miss Templeton to-day. "All that I know is that I shall not be with Weber & Fields."

JUDAS ACTOR FEARS ASSASSIN

Tyrone Power, in "Mary of Magdala," Dreads Attack of Some Religious Crank on the Manhattan Theatre Stage.

PLAYS JUDAS AS A PATRIOT.

Dread that he may become the victim of a fanatic's knife or bullet is Tyrone Power, confessed, felt by him each night as he appears upon the stage of the Manhattan Theatre to play Judas in "Mary of Magdala."

"For the first few nights of the production this feeling amounted to absolute fear," said the actor, whose fine impersonation has created a profound impression.

"From the time I began studying the part I had many misgivings as to how the public would receive me in the role of a man reviled and despised the world over. This doubt grew until on the night of the first performance I faced the audience with sensations closely akin to terror."

"The scene leading immediately to the betrayal, where Judas consents to do what Calphas asks of him, was the greatest trial. As the play progressed to this stage the thought came to me:

"Suppose there should be in the audience a fanatic with a pistol or a knife in his pocket and he, in the illusion of the moment, should be seized with an impulse to kill me? Why would not such a thing be possible? Why should not a person overcome by religious emotion say to himself: 'There is the arch-traitor! He is going to deliver Christ into the hands of his enemies! I will stop him! I will prevent it!'"

"When it was suggested that the scene was over, and now I am gradually becoming less and less apprehensive. But I still feel there may be an element of danger in portraying a character held in horror and aversion by mankind generally. It is well known that persons overwrought by what they have seen enacted on the stage have sent bullets after actors playing villainous characters and have been known to leap over the footlights, knife in hand."

When it was suggested that he portrays Judas in a manner to awaken sympathy rather than hatred, Mr. Power said:

"Yes, that is my purpose. I gained that conception of the character from the first reading of the play. I believe it was the endeavor of Mr. Heyse to present Judas in that light—to make him a man of deep and what he believed to be honest convictions—a patriot at heart, but a man who erred, who had a misconception of Christ. The sympathetic side of the character appealed to me and I play in that vein, believing I had presented Judas as he really was."

While playing the part in Chicago I received letters from a number of clergymen saying I had presented Judas as a new light and that it was their purpose to commend him to their pupils on what had impressed them as the discovery of a sympathetic side to the nature of the betrayer."

Next season, Mr. Power says, he will probably leave Mrs. Fiske's company and star in a Shakespearean repertoire.
